

CONFEARACY

- We are an American German metal band that collaborated our two countries metal sounds. This is how the band Confearacy describe themselves, a band featuring lead vocalist Brian O'Connor (ex-Vicious Rumors), guitarist Ira Black, (ex- Vicious Rumors, Lizzy Borden, Metal Church), guitarist Fabian Schwarz, bassist Guenter Ausrat (The New Black, Abandoned) and drummer Timo Weis. They have recently released their debut album which feature a cover of mysticism, Hallowed were fortunate enough to ask the band some questions and received some very short answers.

The sound of Confearacy is described as American German power, tech, thrash metal with death metal overtones, at least they are by the band themselves. The debut album which is self titled is described by the band as a true collaboration.

- We were looking to combine American metal sounds with European metal sounds to create something powerful but dynamic.

There is a lot of talk about this European/American collaboration from this band, one might think though that the distance would make it a bit tricky to collaborate. However, the world of today is not as big as the world used to be, the modern communications have been talked about earlier in this webzine and it is something that this band make good use of.

- In this day and age the internet and home studios are super easy to get records done.

The album was produced by Fabian Schwarz and Brian O'Connor, guitarist and singer in the band and they say that they are very pleased with how the album turned out. Apparently they do not want to pick a favourite song of the album but says the best thing of this album is that it is a true collaboration. The collaboration between experienced metal musicians from both America and Germany.

Reception & touring

According to the promotional information the band writes about controversial topics when it comes to the lyrical content, their name reflect on a lot of this being a play on words putting together the words conspiracy and fear.

- We write about mysticism, government conspiracy's, relationships, spirituality and other topics that are on our minds, says the band about their lyrical themes.

The name and album cover reflects this mystic and conspiratoric theme along with the song titles as well, but does their end of day prophesies go down well with people?

It would appear that it does, according to the band the reception has been great. The feedback have been great, reviews and everything has been positive says the band.

The band has been offered to do some touring but says they have to be sensible about their approach so they give no information about where and when they will tour, if they will. Though the assumption is that they will tour mostly in Europe if there is to be anything.

I asked the band about how they would say they are as a live band, and the answer was:

- We are looking forward to playing live at festivals and on tour within next year. It will be powerful and dynamic. We are all seasoned professional musicians who can be ready for any opportunity that comes our way at a moments notice.

So, I guess you will have to visit the bands website at <http://www.confearacy.net> to know more about touring and what the band are up to. Their self titled debut album is out now in both territories of this band, do look the band up to know more about upcoming tours and gigs and also read our review.
