

From outer space comes the Mammutants, a group of Cygothian Cyberzerker warriors who escaped the mayhem of their planet and are now roaming the galaxy in the search for meat.

As it appears our planet, the Earth seems to be their next target, Hallowed has in their role as the most important publication ever in the history of man earned a chat with an unknown member of the group of Mammutants.

As it seems there is not good times awaiting and it is not because of the global warming and carbon dioxide that everyone seem to think, no the threat is far more serious and far more difficult to handle.

Sure if all humans combine their resources and put aside their differences, the maybe the human race can be powerful enough, but there is nothing that would point towards such a development and the first steps towards our destruction is already upon us and in May 2010 came another sign called simply Atomizer.

But what are these Mammutants all about, here are the questions and answers we got from that unknown Mammutant, who actually is the leader of the group:

Hallowed: Tell me a little about Mammutant:

Mammutant: we are the last survivors of an ancient alien race from a distant galaxy.

Hallowed: You are from a planet called Xorgosh, where is it located?

Mammutant: it is located nowhere, since the entire planet was destroyed a long time ago, when the great civil for total domination took place. but it was located in a distant galaxy unbeknownst to man.

Hallowed: Can you tell me a little about this planet?

Mammutant: sure, it was an inhospitable planet, mostly full of wastelands, swamps and bare mountains, inhabited by several cannibal-tribes and strange creatures like the horrid brainslugs. the main cities on the other hand looked very nice, when our architects were in their prime! you should have seen the temples of muschtrallh, what a marvelous sight. but enough slobbering!

Hallowed: What happened to destroy the entire planet in the final Nangorian onslaught?

Mammutant: the great war was the opportunity to test our latest weaponry, so did our enemies, this must've been a little too much, I fear!

Hallowed: How did the Mammutants escape?

Mammutant: uschgallh the fat, who was our leader until I replaced him for a brief period of time, had his zombie-engineers build a small spacecraft, for situations like this, I assume! and for I found it fair and square, I felt free to use it, when things got a little "precarious", taking along my elite-cyberzerker warriors!

Hallowed: Why would Earth be the next stop? Isn't there any other planets suitable for new meat?

Mammutant: pure chance! or maybe destiny?

Hallowed: Can you tell me a little about Atomizer?

Mammutant: atomizer is the soundtrack to the downfall of your world, procreated to get us in the right destructive mood, it sounds like a steamroller crushing a mound of skulls and bones, epic, dark, heavy, outstanding, hell yeah!

Hallowed: What is the best thing about Atomizer?

Mammutant: the best thing about atomizer is, that it's finally out now, in the material world, ready to twist your minds and eventually make them explode in pleasure!

Hallowed: Do you have any favorite song?

Mammutant: that changes every day, right now i guess it's take no prisoners.

Hallowed: Will you do any touring?

Mammutant: yes. of course, in order to make you all suffer properly, we will have to, don't we? sullu gayachamba rutt!

Hallowed: Do you have anything to add to our readers?

Mammutant: prepare for an unpleasant surprise! we do not come in peace! say goodbye to your tasty bodies. soon you get beaten, then you get eaten! un-gallah mugallah vriiii!

After this the guy got more and more impossible to understand, started blurting out strange noises and words without meaning and so on and so forth, it would seem he has no money and therefore needs to sell a few records before he and his followers can start devouring the human race.

Astronomers have managed to locate the planet and since they are believers in Einsteins theories and the speed of light the can actually even see it in its prime, even though the mammutants are here in the vicinity of Earth, kind of strange but so it is.

Space is a difficult beast to understand and even if there is a possibility to fend off the Mammutant threat, what's there to say that there are more like them out there.

Hallowed has of course listened to the record and rated it in our review section so if you are curious you may want to check that one out in order to learn about what is on the record that they will use as soundtrack for our destruction.

So, as if not only the cold weather contradicts global warming, the people still saying that that is the biggest threat to mankind maybe shout take a peek upwards...

Article written by Daniel Källmalm

Photos are stolen from Massacre Records press site

Article research made by nasa

